Changes to Idaho's Immunization Rules and What It Means for Your Child Eastern Idaho Public Health District to Hold Special Immunization Clinics for Current Sixth Grade Students

MADISON & FREMONT COUNTIES – This year, the Idaho Legislature passed some new rules governing childhood immunizations. These new rules, which went into effect April 7, 2011, affect children in childcare, and children entering kindergarten or seventh grade this fall. These groups of children will be required to have certain immunizations in order to enroll in and attend childcare or school.

“One of the biggest changes is the new immunization requirements for children entering seventh grade this fall,” stated Lynne Trauntvein, RN, Immunization Coordinator at Eastern Idaho Public Health District (EIPHD). “As a convenience for parents of current sixth grade students, the health district will be holding special immunization clinics at schools and at our health district offices specifically for sixth graders to get the new required vaccines.”

The following special immunization clinics will be held in Fremont and Madison Counties. Parents should watch for more information to be sent home with their sixth grader about the new requirements and special clinics.

Under Idaho law, parents are allowed to claim an exemption from immunization requirements for their child for medical, religious, or philosophical reasons. All exemptions must be documented on the official State of Idaho form provided by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Immunization Program.

Eastern Idaho Public Health District encourages parents to contact their medical provider or the health district with any questions about these new requirements or to ensure their children are up to date with the new vaccination requirements.
